THE COLOURS

Since earliest times, warriors have carried standards or flags as a distinguishing mark and to serve as a rallying point during battle. To lose the standard often meant that the leader was lost and thus the standard became symbolic of the spirit and tradition of the group to which it belonged.

Arising from this ancient tradition units of today are allowed two Colours — Queen's Colour and Regimental Colour. The Queen's Colour is a reminder to all ranks of their loyalty and duty to their Sovereign and their Country. The Regimental Colour is a symbol of Regimental tradition and of the duty owed by each Member to the Regiment. The Colours are highly valued, carefully guarded and treated with great respect.

Until 1881 the Colours were taken to war and were carried at the head of each Regiment by young officers called Ensigns. History records many acts of bravery performed in order to prevent the Colours falling into the hands of the enemy. However, with the introduction of more modern weapons the casualty rate amongst Colour and Standard Bearers became so high that, since the Boer War, when a unit departs for active service, the Colours are entrusted to the care of the Civic Authorities or placed in a Cathedral or local Church until the troops return.

Before being presented, the Colours are always consecrated at a religious ceremony on parade when God's blessing on them is asked. This dates back to the Battle of the Standard in 1138 when the Yeomen of Yorkshire, fighting the Scots, took with them consecrated banners from York Cathedral, and fought so fiercely to save the banners that they defeated heavy odds.

Today the Company of Officer Cadets is to be presented with its new Colours in continuance of this ancient military tradition.

- c. During the Consecration of the Colours by the Chaplains-General.
- During the March Past, when the Colours pass the immediate front of a spectator.

All ranks attending the Parade in uniform, stand to attention and salute:

- a. During the playing of the National Anthem.
- b. When the Colours pass during the March Past.

THE CONSECRATION SERVICE

When all is ready, the Commandant, Officer Cadet School, shall say:

Forasmuch as men at all times have made for themselves signs and emblems of their allegiance to their rulers, and of their duty to uphold those laws and institutions which God's providence has called them to obey; we, following this ancient and pious custom, and remembering that God Himself led his people into Israel by a pillar of fire by night and a pillar of cloud by day, are met together before God to ask His Blessing on these Colours, which are to represent to us our duty towards our Sovereign and our Country. May they never be unfurled, save in the cause of justice and righteousness; and may God make them to be, to those who follow them, a sign of His presence in all dangers and distresses, and so increase their faith and hope in Him, Who is King of Kings and Lord of Lords.

The Commandant and Officer Cadets shall then say:

Commandant: To the Service of God and the hallowing of His Holy Name;

All: We dedicate ourselves afresh.

Commandant: To the love of our Queen and Country, and to the welfare of mankind:

All: We dedicate ourselves afresh.

Commandant: To the maintenance of honour and sanctity of man's plighted word;

All: We dedicate ourselves afresh.

Commandant: To the protection of all those who pass to and fro on their lawful occasions:

All: We dedicate ourselves afresh.

Commandant: To the preservation of order and good government;

All: We dedicate ourselves afresh.

Commandant: To the hallowed memory of our comrades, whose courage and endurance add undying lustre to our emblems;

All: We dedicate our Colours.

Commandant: In continual remembrance of our solemn oath and in token of our resolve faithfully and truly to keep it to the end;

All: We dedicate our Colours.

The Company of Officer Cadets will be called to attention, the spectators standing, gentlemen removing headdress. The Commandant shall then say to the Chaplains-General:

Reverend Sirs, on behalf of The Company of Officer Cadets, we ask you to bid God's blessing on these Colours.

Each Chaplain-General on the Parade will then in turn move forward to Consecrate, Bless or Dedicate the Colours.

Chaplain-General A. E. S. Begbie, E.D., Church of England, laying his hand on the Colours, shall say:

In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit, we do consecrate and set apart these Colours, that they may be a sign of our duty towards our Queen and our Country in the sight of God. Amen.

Chaplain-General J. A. Morgan, E.D., Roman Catholic, blessing the Colours, shall say:

Bless, O Lord, these Colours which we bless in Thy Name, that those who follow them, may be ever mindful of Thy Presence, guided by Thy Will, and guarded by Thy Providence.

Making the Sign of the Cross over the Colours he continues:

In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, Amen.

The Colours are now sprinkled with Holy Water.

Chaplain-General H. Cunningham, E.D., Protestant Denominations, laying his hand on the Colours, shall say:

In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit, we do dedicate and set apart these Colours, that they may be a sign of our duty towards our Queen and our Country in the sight of God. Amen.

The Company of Officer Cadets will be stood at ease.

Then all on Parade shall say after the Chaplain:

Who beholdest all the kingdom of the earth; have regard unto our land; that it may continue a place and a people; who serve Thee to the end of time.

Grant that all who live beneath our flag; may be so mindful of its crosses; that they may work for the good of others: according to the example of Him; Who died upon a cross in the service of men.

Let Thy gracious favour rest on all; who shall follow the Colours now about to be committed to our trust. May our courage ever rest: on success: and patience: in the name of adversity.

May our honour lie: in seeking the honour and glory of Thy Great Name: through Jesus Christ: our Lord, Amen.

The Lord's Prayer.

Spectators may now resume their seats.

HISTORICAL NOTES

School Motto: Loyalty and Service

School Marches: Quick March: "Portsea"

Slow March: "By Land and Sea"

The Officer Cadet School was established at Portsea, Victoria, in 1951, when, with the Army's rapid growth, more officers were required than the Royal Military College, Duntroon, and other sources could provide. The first Commandant was Colonel J. W. Harrison, CBE, now Major General Harrison, CBE, GOC Eastern Command.

The School opened with a class of 71 cadets on 5th January, 1952, and at the first graduation parade on 6th June, 1952, 61 cadets were commissioned as second lieutenants. Since the School's establishment, 1306 officers have graduated, of whom 1106 were Australian, 137 from New Zealand, 29 from Malaysia, and 12 from the Philippines. Several other countries have at some time sent young men for officer training at the School including Singapore, Brunei, Nigeria, Fiji and Thailand. In addition the School has produced seven officers for the RAAF.

From 1952-4 cadets completed a six month course before graduation, but in 1955 this was extended to twelve months with two intakes each year. At present 132 cadets are undergoing training of whom 64 are in the Senior Class and 68 are in the Junior Class. The course is designed primarily to produce regimental officers for all Arms and Services of the Army. Cadets enter the school from service and civilian sources in January and July each year.

Several graduates of the Officer Cadet School have distinguished themselves in their later service by acts of outstanding courage and heroism. Major Peter Badcoe's VC awarded posthumously after an engagement with the enemy in Vietnam leads an impressive list of awards including nine Military Crosses, a DFC and an MBE, bestowed on graduates of the School.

In the sixteen years since its foundation the Officer Cadet School has proved itself as a source of the highest ideals in the Australian Army and the Australian nation, capably meeting the challenge of its motto—"Loyalty and Service."
